WEAK NERVES

PAIN'S CELERY COMPOUND is a Nervine Tonic which never fails. Contains Celery and Cocaine, those wonderful nerve stimulants, it cures all nervous disorders.

RHEUMATISM

PAIN'S CELERY COMPOUND purifies the blood, drives out the lactic acid which causes Rheumatism, and restores the blood-making organs to a healthy condition. It is the true remedy for Rheumatism.

KIDNEY COMPLAINTS

PAIN'S CELERY COMPOUND quickly restores the liver and kidneys to perfect health. This curative power, combined with its nerve tonic, makes it the best remedy for all kidney complaints.

DYSPEPSIA

PAIN'S CELERY COMPOUND strengthens the stomach, and quiets the nerves of the digestive organs. This is why it cures even the worst cases of Dyspepsia.

Old Time Executions.

In the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries our method of execution was most brutal.

There was the long ride of the criminal in an open cart, with his coffin by his side, either to Tyburn or to the spot where he committed the murder; the cart was stopped under the gallows, the rope was fastened round the criminal's neck, the carman gave the horse a lash and the poor wretch was left swaying to and fro, kicking.

If he had friends they would try to shorten his agony by hanging on his legs and beating his breast—a shocking sight. But hanging then was looked upon as a holiday spectacle in which we find the lower class took great interest and evinced much sympathy for the deceased.

For instance, Claude Duval, the celebrated highwayman, lay in state at the Tangle tavern in St. Giles in a room hung with black cloth, the bier covered with scutcheons and with eight wax candles burning around. He was buried by torchlight and was followed to Covent Garden Church by a numerous train of mourners, mostly women. Mission, a French writer who visited England in the reign of William III, says: "He that is hang'd or otherwise executed first takes care to get himself shaved and handsomely dressed either in mourning or in the dress of a bridegroom. This done, he sets his friends to work to get him leave to be buried and to carry his coffin with him, which is easily obtained. When his suit of clothes or night-gown, his gloves, hat, perwig, nosegay, coffin, flannel dress for his corpse, and all those things are bought and prepared the main point is taken care of—his mind is at peace—and then he thinks of his conscience. Generally he studies a speech which he pronounces under the gallows and gives in writing to the sheriff or the minister that attends him in his last moments, desiring that it may be printed. Sometimes the girls dress in white, with great silk scarfs, and carry baskets full of flowers and oranges, scattering these favors all the way they go. But to represent things as they really are I must needs own that if a pretty many of these people dress thus gayly and go to it with such an air of indifference there are many others that go slowly and with very dismal phrases. I remember one day I saw in the park a handsome girl very well dressed, that was then in mourning for her father, who had been hanged but a month before at Tyburn for false coinage. So many centuries, so many fashions."—Gentleman's Magazine.

ANOTHER "GOLD BRICK" VICTIM.—The property of Mr. Henry Doubleday, an extensive dealer in bark, has been attached by the White River National Bank, in South Royalton, N. Y., in order to cover a debt contracted by Mr. Doubleday. He says he was swindled out of $4,000 or $5,000 by the "gold brick" scheme. The swindlers, who gave the names of Stewart and Allison, induced Mr. Doubleday to raise the money, giving him property as security. The details of the swindle are as follows: A man called on Mr. Doubleday on the 4th inst., and found that he was in Woodstock attending court. He then took a team and went there. He found the gentleman and informed him that he had been recommended to him as a shrewd business man and would be pleased to enter in partnership with him in the operation of a valuable gold mine in Mexico. He laid before him a proposition to go to Montpelier and there he would show the specimens of gold and submit them to any test, and if satisfactory would turn over to him the bricks valued at $22,000 for an advance of a few thousands as security until such time as they could again get in operation. They went to Montpelier and had the gold tested by an assayer. The assayer proved satisfactory and Mr. Doubleday became satisfied that the bricks were gold of a fine quality and that the investment would be a good one. He drew from the bank the money and advanced it. The parties left immediately for Canada, and the victim last week received a letter from the mine owner saying that the business transacted was a swindle and that he had better keep it from the press, and asking also the names of several wealthy gentlemen in his town.
